

Clay Ryan serves as senior vice president of External Affairs, where he is responsible for Governmental Affairs, Corporate Affairs, Charitable Giving, and Alabama Power's six geographical business divisions.

Prior to joining Alabama Power, he served as the senior vice chancellor for External Affairs for the University of Alabama System, where he was responsible for federal, state and local governmental affairs activities for the University of Alabama, the University of Alabama in Huntsville, the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB) and UAB Health System. Additionally, he coordinated economic and workforce development activities across the UA System and was intimately involved in crisis communications.

Prior to his UA System role, Ryan chaired the Governmental and Regulatory Affairs practice group at Maynard Nexsen, an Alabama-based law firm with 24 offices across the United States. Ryan represented clients in the energy, utility, health care, biotech, financial services, telecommunications, IT, higher education, and land management sectors, among others. He also provided counsel on ethics and compliance to numerous clients, managed statewide campaigns, and advised elected and other public officials on legal and public interest matters.

He earned a Bachelor of Arts with honors from Birmingham-Southern College and received his Juris Doctor with honors from the University of Alabama School of Law, where he was editor of the Alabama Law Review.

Ryan is a graduate of both Leadership Birmingham and Leadership Alabama. He has been recognized by the Birmingham Business

Journal's Top 40 Under 40 and Yellowhammer News' Power & Influence 50. He is a member of the board of directors of the Business Council of Alabama and is a board member of Junior Achievement. He has served as a board member of the Glenwood Autism & Behavioral Health Center and chair of the Public Affairs Research Council of Alabama's Roundtable.

Ryan and his wife Sisi reside in Vestavia and have three children.

Clay Ryan

Senior Vice President,
External Affairs,
Alabama Power
Company

